Ferraro examines how people interpret their risk of criminal victimization and identifies who is most likely to be afraid of crime. Although many previous studies of fear of crime do not explicitly consider the concept of risk in describing the prevalence of fear, the approach taken here considers perceived risk as central to the entire interpretive process.

Fear of Crime - SUNY Press

The fear of crime refers to the fear of being a victim of crime as opposed to the actual probability of being a victim of crime. The fear of crime, along with fear of the criminal and the fear of justice, is said to have been a major motive for the "crime wave". Small fear of crime varies dramatically in public opinion. Thought experiments about hypothetical levels of criminal victimization, distinctions can also be made between the tendencies to lower situations at fairly the same rate.
